Soundscape is a new interface for musical expression (NIME) specifically created for the University of Queensland iPad Ensemble. The interface is designed to allow them to perform their compositions and transport the interactive surface from a small iPad in front of them to a large visual display. The surface not only providing the digital musician with feedback of their interaction but also providing the audience with a similar experience and visual representation of the music.